

RSS Feeds Facts

You should have RSS if you want to syndicate your website or your blog. The way of syndicating websites, online news and weblogs is called RSS feeds or Really Simple Syndication. It is used by major online news sites, community sites and weblogs. RSS feeds are also being used for other information the subscriber may be interested in although you might think that it is only applicable for news feeds. The feeds enable the subscriber, especially those with lot of interests, to have access to the latest information from the different site he had subscribed to.

There are many different versions of the RSS feeds but all of them fall under either of the two formats. The first format is the original RSS, the 0.90, which was designed by Netscape for news sites. This original format was very complicated for use and was simplified in its next version, the 0.91. The other format, the RSS 1.0 was designed by non commercial group. There are a total of seven different formats, all referred to as RSS.

A feed is what you need if you are among the individuals who want to have the latest information the moment they are released. You can actually see if your favorite website has added a new content of you have the feed. The moment your favorite site published a new content, you can get it immediately without needing to visit the site. If you have many interests or have many favorite websites and do not have time to visit them one by one the feed is the most convenient way for you to access the latest in those sites.

The first thing you should do if you want to use feeds is to have the right software. There are many software you can use if you want to read a feed. The news aggregator which is popular among bloggers is one example. This software can help the subscriber keep up with his favorite blogs by simply checking the feeds. Other software works in the same way the only difference is that some are web based or browser based while others are applications which you have to download first. The next thing you should do then is to decide on what you want to receive. For example you can then subscribe to E or The Insider if you want to receive the latest Hollywood news. All you have to do is to click on the feed icon in their site and you will automatically receive feed from their sites. More articles Rss directory . Rss . Rss source .
