

Regardless of Your Lifestyle, Rochester NY Has an Apartment for You

People from all walks of life call Rochester NY home. You can find apartments in stately older Rochester NY homes that have been divided into individual living units or more modern style apartments in one of the many complexes located throughout the area. You will find a lot of options to choose from among the many apartments available for rent in Rochester NY.

The apartments and lofts located in the old manufacturing buildings located in the downtown Rochester NY area known as the St. Paul District may appeal to you if you are a young professional. This area is close to both the business and entertainment districts and is easily accessible by car or public transportation. Imagine being able to walk to work if you both live and work in downtown Rochester NY. A large number of apartments in the Park Avenue and Monroe Avenue can be found in the large older homes that are filled with character and charm, not to mention spacious front porches. This area is known for its lively and family friendly atmosphere with its street level shops and restaurants and proximity to cultural attractions such as the Rochester Museum and Science Center and the Strasenburgh Planetarium. Some of the apartments in these old Rochester NY houses are as large as a small house. You cannot beat the area for its energy and its charm.

The revitalization of the Rochester NY downtown area has extended to the riverfront with the completion of an apartment and retail complex in the historic Corn Hill neighborhood. If you are of a more artistic bent of mind, you will find plenty of prospective places to live in the University Avenue area, with its Artwalk and the Memorial Art Gallery in close proximity. Let us not forget about the ever evolving High Falls District located on the outer western edge of the downtown area. New apartment construction coupled with an influx of small businesses moving into the area herald the resurgence of this section of downtown.

Suburban Rochester NY is home to numerous apartment complexes that are located close to schools, libraries and shopping centers. These complexes typically offer community centers for communal gathering and game rooms, tennis courts and swimming pools for relaxation. Apartment layouts typically include one or two bedrooms and living rooms sized large enough for family gatherings.

There is an apartment in Rochester NY that is just right for you. What is not to like about the ease of living with all the outdoor maintenance chores taken care of for you. Lawn mowing and driveway shoveling chores are taken care of for you. Indoor maintenance is taken care of for you as well. Why not give apartment living a try.
